The Look

Hendersonville High School is located at the base of the incredibly beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains.

As the students entered the gym on that first Monday, a sense of anticipation was lingering in the air. As Karen Steepy said, "I was eager to get a LOOK inside." This statement held true for the majority of the students. The LOOK of Hendersonville High school had been updated in 90's fashion, and the attitudes toward learning remained enthusiastic. Beau Wadell said, "The improved LOOK of the school gave me the desire to excel in all my academic courses and extracurricular activities." This attitude

Something for Everybody

Hendersonville's curriculum is as diverse as its students - large enough to encompass the most inquisitive person, yet small enough to make the shyest person comfortable. A sense of closeness prevailed in all aspects of Hendersonville life. Many students cited the student-teacher relationships as being one of Hendersonville's greatest strengths. Academic excellence came first at Hendersonville. It was apparent as seen on the school report card with an above-par rating. Students in need of extra help found teachers receptive to their needs. Extracurricular activities abounded at HHS, with a wide variety of sports. Clubs and organizations attracted many ambitious, hard-working and capable individuals with different talents and interests. Hendersonville truly did have something for everybody.

Jake Jime to Celebrate. 1991

Celebrate! Homecoming 1991 was a celebration. A week that had been full of activity and spirit was finished off by a football victory and the crowning of the 1992 Homecoming King and Queen. The court, announced at Tuesday's assembly, was as follows: freshmen representatives, Emily Sherrill and Preston Pierce; sophomore representatives, Catherine Bell and Darrell Braswell; junior representatives, Marcsarah Williams and John Allison; and senior representatives, Jeanni Bass and Evans O'Brien, Emery Boyd and Eric Thomas, Christine Owens and Brian Rowe, Catherine Perry and David Eaton, Cathey Ridings and Cliff Aaron. These select few had been chosen by their classmates to represent HHS in the year 1992 to all the alumni from years past. When halftime rolled around, they were driven onto the track to the cheers of their peers. Anticipation hung over the candidates as they stood waiting for their names to be called. Finally it was the time for the Homecoming King and Queen to be announced. The King for 1992 was Brian Rowe and the Queen was Jeanni Bass. When asked about being crowned King, Brian Rowe said, "I was really nervous. When I heard my name, I was really surprised. I was happy to get it."

Jake Jime to Celebrate 1991

5,4,3,2,1 — the excitement had begun. Here at HHS, Homecoming was an event-filled week that got everyone's spirit flowing. It was undoubtedly the busiest week of the year. From the wild and crazy Powderpuff activities to the enchanted evening of the dance, it was truly a week to remember. When asked what Homecoming week meant to him, Patrick Eaton said, "It means everyone showing their school spirit."

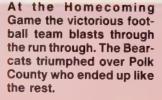

Homecoming week got off and running with Movie Day for the students who had sold five or more magazines in the magazine drive. Also, all the Fine Arts students watched the Dayton Ballet's performance. Tuesday was College Day and the day of the Homecoming assembly where alumni teachers from years ago were honored. Tuesday night continued with a bang as the Pizza Blast and the Powderpuff Game carried on. The senior/sophomore team carried on a long tradition by beating the junior/freshmen team in a Powderpuff victory of 18-8. The beautiful Erica Thomas was crowned Powderpuff Queen.

Students and teachers looked as though they had gotten out of bed a little late on Inside-out Day on Wednesday. Thursday saw wild ties, wacky socks, spiritful parades, and hot bonfires as pep started to build for the big game Friday night.

The school gleamed with Red and White on Friday. Everyone got out early for a pep rally with the kids from Bruce Drysdale showing us what spirit was all about. Then everybody got to work decorating everything in sight Red and White.

After a long week of fun and exciting activities, at last it was time for the big game that everyone — including parents, alumni, faculty, and students — had been waiting for. The King and Queen were crowned, and the football team led HHS to victory once again.

Students experience the GREAT OUTDOORS of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Living in the Blue Ridge Mountains gave students a great chance to spend time outdoors hiking, mountain-bike riding, leaf watching, whitewater rafting, or just experiencing nature. Hendersonville is especially well known for its distinctive four seasons. Autumn is particularly vibrant and brings leaf lookers from across the country. HHS students enjoyed this time of year also. As Wendy Dennis commented, "I like to watch the leaves fall around my house."

There are many things one could do outdoors. Heather Bell liked "to go on picnics with my special friends." And Leah Harple liked "to ride my horse while the leaves are falling upon us." Deborah Newkirk liked to be more laid back as she "sits as one with nature and enjoys the surroundings." Some of the things that people enioved doing outdoors were a bit more off the wall, such as Eric Lennington's desire to "put on camouflage, climb a tree, and shoot assorted wild animals for the sole reason of mounting their heads above the fireplace."

Bobby Brackett enjoyed not only the beauty of the country-side surrounding us but also the freedom, "You don't have to look at teachers." Others such as Thomas Sima were glad about the convenience that living in the mountains brought, "You don't have to go on vacation to see the mountains."

Students had many opportunities to experience nature and many places to do so. The outing club provided many chances for interested students to go camping, hiking, whitewater rafting down the Nantahala, and learning about different. amazing natural occurrences all under the mentorship of the outing man himself, Dr. VI. The area's many natural attractions such as Carl Sandburg's house and Big Glassy trail, the knob, Pisgah National Forest, Jackson Park's nature trail. Mills River. Holmes State Forest with the talking trees, and Catherine Perry's Mountain were all within minutes from Hendersonville and made themselves available for students' enjoyment.

But the overall best thing about living in and near the GREAT OUTDOORS according to Simon J. Lashford was "nature and the friendly folk."

The Lazy Bays of Summer

HHS students stay busy during the lazy days of summer.

Hot, long, humid days of summer: no school work to contend with, no pressure over grades, no tests to take. Isn't that what summer is all about? But students at HHS just didn't know when to quit.

When summer rolled around, most students went to the beach, on vacation, or found a job.

But some took the time to improve their minds. To Governor's School they went. Jessica Burns related, "I loved Governor's School because it not only helped in the area you went in, but you came out knowing yourself and others better. I miss it and I hated leaving because of the good friends that I made and the good times that we had."

Other people went to far exotic places like Myrtle Beach to relax. Jennifer Ramsey, Tasha Childress, and Karen Steepy agreed that the Keywanette Beach trip was "a well-deserved reward for all our service to the community."

Others spent the summer earning money. Jobs were scarce, but some found work at such places as grocery stores, retail stores, fast food restaurants, and camps.

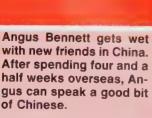

Many people went on vacation this summer to places as far away as Arizona, Wyoming, and California. And others went overseas to Europe, China, and the Caribbean. Effic Constantinou went to Greece, "I really enjoyed my trip. The islands were my favorite part."

Some just hung out at home with friends, doing summer things like swimming, sunning, and water-skiing. Bree Miller learned to water-ski this summer. She said, "It was really fun except for when you forget to let go of the rope after you fall."

But summertime passed quickly, and HHS students found themselves back at school.

Friendships blossom quickly when you only have six weeks together. Nicole Mucci gets close with two of her friends from Governor's School East.

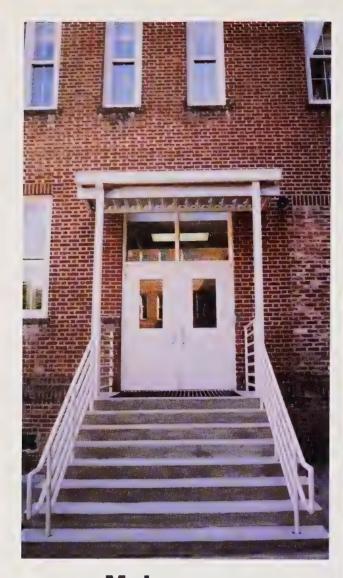

Over the summer Simon Lashford became a Spanish Inquisitioner. The apprentice program at the Flat Rock Playhouse gave him the opportunity to perform in Man of La Mancha.

Heather Bell turned into an M&M this summer at Governor's School West Actually Heather is getting ready to go to the Masquerade Dance with her M&M friends. Keywannettes Amy Shipman and Cathey Ridings spend time on the Keywannette beach trip to improve their long friendship.

Makeovers

Walking into our new school the first day many were surprised that this was the same school that they had attended last year. Major changes such as the white walls, mauve carpets, sand woodwork, new entrances, a new principal and vice principal took a while to get used to. As Kathleen McDonough related, "It took me about a month, mainly because after three years of being in the old school it takes a while to get used to your school looking like a hospital. It's nice but it seems to lack some of its old personality." For the most part the changes brought enthusiastic response.

The school year brought new faces. Six new teachers were added to the faculty: Pam Bolton, Joan Davis, Lisa Sims, B.J. Laughter, Rocky Rhode, and Leslie Zarnowski. And even new administrators came: Keith Dalbec and Bobby Wilkins.

With a new building students were charged to take extra-special care of everything which included an absolute ruling-out of gum and food. Even time was changed. We came to school at 8:05 am and left at 3:05 pm.

During renovation the school was virtually torn apart. These are the remains of the Drama/Chorus room.

How do you feel about the new Look of our school?

The bathrooms were luxurious compared to the dark, dreary, and dirty rooms of the year before. The water fountains worked more than just most of the time. All these little changes made school more of a thrill to attend. The outlook was brighter for students, mainly because of the increase in sunlight that streamed through the new windows.

Once we got acclimatized, there was no going back. We could only look forward with great anticipation to the renovation of the cafeteria and bandroom.

The year was full of makeovers. A practically new building and new people were put together and made the school better than ever.

AND WHO ARE

For many of us it was scary to come back to school after a long and peaceful summer; it was hard for us to even think about seeing our old teachers again and hard to comprehend being in the same old school for one, two, or three more years. But imagine finding yourself in a completely new country with all the people around you speaking a language in very loud voices that you don't fully understand. Imagine yourself living with an unfamiliar family in an unfamiliar school. Imagine yourself entering a new school, a school where all the other students know where they are going. It is a whole new way of life to get used to, a whole new atmosphere.

This unfamiliarity was the way several of our students felt in coming to America for the first time. Our exchange students went through a lot in making themselves at home in the USA and HHS.

Imagine leaving long held friendships, a town, and a school which you were used to. Imagine having to make completely new friends. Imagine being a freshman again. Moving and changing schools can seem like starting all over again.

These newcomers had to break through close knit circles of friends in order to find people to talk to, laugh with, and spend the remainder of their high school days with. They had to search to find their niche and share it with the school. But they did.

Almost every organization was joined by a person new to the school.

Cengiz Ozelsel has no problems making friend with American girls, Sabrina Freeman and Dana Stepp.

Christina Calvo Martija seems wary about tasting the cafeteria's cuisine.

People are openhearted and kind. No uniforms. At first I didn't understand classes, but now I am better."

ARE YOU FASHIONABLE?

The comings and goings of fashions and trends can sometimes overwhelm the not-sofashion-conscious person on the street. But not to fear, at HHS fashion seemed to mean whatever fit you and your personality best. From tight skirts to jeans, from big hair to shaven heads. from leather jackets to trench coats HHS had a-come-as-you-are mentality. Come-as-you-are meant dresed up or dressed down. The halls were trodden by high heels, high tops, army boots, hiking boots, cowboy boots, sneakers, and even flipflops. Although hats were forbidden, many heads got through covered by baseball caps, moose caps, big hats and smaller hats, winter hats and summer hats. Eyes were shielded from the midday sun and the glare of flourescent overhead lights by Top Gun or Blues Brother style shades. With so many styles to choose from, it wasn't hard to find something comfortable to wear.

We asked a few fashion conscious people whom they considered the most stylish people in school. And here's what they thought: "Kate Chandler, because she has more clothes than most stores," according to John Luntsford; "Kisha Roy, because she looks different everyday," according to Christian Hill; and "Jennifer Ramsey, because she looks as good as I do," according to Thomas Treadwell.

Fashion went beyond what one wore. More than clothes fashion was a statement of a person's beliefs or feelings.

Jennifer Ramsey sits here looking as good as Thomas Treadwell.

How do you define fashion or style?

CEIEBRITIES

A celebrity is someone who has a special spark, "a something with which everyone can identify," according to Daniel Griffin. Our favorite idols ranged from rock stars to movie stars to athletes.

There were many school celebrities, people with special talents and a yearning to share them with us - from the singing talent of Cathey Ridings to the tennis abilities of number one ranked J.J. Jackson.

Maybe one of the reasons for so many talented people was the strength of our school, especially our fine arts program. The band once again churned out emerging musicians as was apparent in their performance at marching, solo, and concert competitions. The Drama Department produced two one-act plays during the fall, Haiku and Mirrors. The dance class emerged as a group driven to learn more than basic dance steps. The Art Department created many pieces that were good enough to be shown in New York City.

The dazzling senior production of Annie Get Your Gun showcased even more hidden talents.

Many talents made themselves apparent at the Talent Show on February 12th. We were entertained by several singing groups, bands, dancers, and other acts all made up of people in our student body. We were impressed by the diverse abilities of our fellow students.

The athletic talent in our school led to a state volleyball championship and many other well attended and exciting sports events.

Everyone is a celebrity to someone.

Prince Charming (A. Burdett) woos Cinderella (C. Bell) on stage and off.

Danny Matthews gets into singing with his band: Jay Hoots, Pete Aldrich, and Eric Lenington.

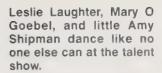

Molly McKee has the pleasure of meeting TV celebrity John Stamos of "Full House."

Derrick Landrum sings, raps, and dances at the talent show.

FANTASY DATES

"We take out Chinese to the deserted beach, talk all night. Realizing that I missed my curfew, he flies me home on his jet plane."

especially on Valentine's Day. The halls were filled with balloons and flowers.

All this talk about relationships made senior Amy Shipman think about friendship: "Communication and trust are the keys to a successful friendship." At times friendships seemed to come and go, but true friends always came back again. Talking about her best friend, Christine Owens said, "Melanie and I have been friends for ten years. It has been well worth the pain."

What was an ideal relationship? According to Kary Church, "When you give as much as you take." Many people have not had the best dating experiences. An anonymous source said, "You have to go through a lot of trial and error before ending up with Mr./Ms. Right.'

Many had dreams of just who Mr. or Ms. Right would be. Jarrett Sydell knew that if he ever found her, he would "pick her up in a Lambourghini, drive to the airport, board my private Concord and fly to St. Croix. We'd go to dinner and eat Lobster tails; then we'd ride on horseback down the beach into the setting sun." Mary O Goebel dreamed of relaxation: "A nice Love was in the air all year round, but most hot tub and a roaring fire with that one special man." Kama Semmel simply looked forward to "being treated like a person, not an object."

> When a couple saw Mr. Williams or a teacher coming down the hall, it was much safer just to be friends. PDA (Public Display of Affection) was supposedly a no-no at HHS, but many still practiced the art of hiding in dark corners of the hallways.

> High school was necessary in the development of social skills. HHS was no exception. Wild parties, sporting events, and extracurricular activities all contributed to students social experience. Where to go and what to do with friends continued to be a major stumbling block in the social lives of students. Many ended up watching movies or listening to music at friends' houses. Musical tastes varied from pop to alternative to rap: "anything with a good beat," according to Peter Aldrich.

> High school was supposed to be for learning, but probably the most important and most memorable things were the friends made and love shared.

THE EDUCATING PRINCIPAL

The 1991-92 LAUREATE is dedicated to a man whose name is synonymous with Hendersonville High School. Tom L. Wilson worked in the Hendersonville City Schools from 1971 to 1991. During this time he won the respect of faculty, students, and the entire community. Current principal Keith Dalbec said of this educator, "Mr. Wilson is a person that acts on his principles. Because of his steadfastness. his vision for education, and his caring for young people, he was widely known as one of the best high school principals in North Carolina."

DEDICATION: TOM L. WILSON.

TRADE ELKINS

JULIA PEKKINS

As the school moved toward the twenty-first century, the LOOK changed. It was time, perhaps past the time, to name a Mr. Laureate, as well as a Miss Laureate. Who was more appropriate for the new title than Trade Elkins? Trade easily gained the respect of teachers, principals, and peers. He became a leader in the classroom, school, and athletic arena. Academically a strong student, Trade's most outstanding trait may well have been his ability to focus on a given situation and reason through that situation easily, logically. He exhibited dependability, responsibility, congenality, school spirit, and service to the school.

Trade-student, leader, athlete-gave his time and abilities to help keep the school successful. For four consecutive years Trade was a Bearcat on the football field; he made all-conference both his junior and senior years. He ran track; he played golf, where he made it to the State Golf Match twice. Trade, an active member of the Key Club, served as its vicepresident two years. He was selected for membership in the Honor Society. As a member of DECA, he was elected its vice-president in the ninth grade and president in the tenth grade. Trade was a very efficient Sports Editor of the '91 LAUREATE and Editor of the '92 LAUREATE. Trade. no doubt, served his school best as its very effective Student Council President - as he did his part to keep this school's traditions

Trade Elkins was highly qualified to be the first MR. LAUREATE.

Leadership, scholarship, and character are the words which have been used to describe Miss Laureate. These were the same words one often heard in descriptions of Julia Perkins. She was a leader in her class by serving as an officer in the Literary Club, the National Honor Society, the Latin Club, and serving as Editor of SOCKO and Student Life Editor of the LAUREATE.

Her outstanding scholarship was recognized when she was inducted into the Honor Society as a junior and nominated for the Morehead Scholarship her senior year. Her high academic average placed her among the top five percent of the graduating class of 1992 where she was recognized as a North Carolina Scholar.

It was perhaps her strength of character which most endeared her to students and teachers alike. She followed an advanced course of study and, yet, gave of her time to tutor other students to the end that they became successful. She was multi-faceted, choosing instrumental music, drama, marching band, and three different languages as her electives. Her French teacher said that "Even though Julia seems to have an affinity for foreign language, she is always prepared with her completed assignments and eager to contribute to the learning environment of the classroom."

Julia moved to the forefront of life by giving of herself to those about her. The enthusiasm with which she pursued any project was inspirational to her peers. It was, therefore, that MISS LAUREATE — 1992 was awarded to JULIE PERK-INS.

The Final Look

A sense of pride and accomplishment was apparent as the Class of 1992 roamed the new, beige halls of HHS. The graduating class played many roles this past year while looking toward the future, as well as reflect-

Serviors ing on the past. As senior Catherine

Perry said, the senior year is an exciting time to be treasured for your entire life. "This statement was carried forth as the Seniors were involved in memorable activities: picnic, football, Homecoming, basketball, off-campus lunch. The Senior class proved once again that Hendersonville High School is an excellent place to begin THE FINAL LOOK!

KEEPING THE SPIRIT ALIVE

A happy lunch bunch, Bill Formichella, Jamey Thorndike, Jay Hoots, Missy Roark, and Cathy de la Cruz enjoy spending time together, away from class.

Every year every senior class in every senior class in every American high school develops a serious affliction, SE-NIORITIES, but this illness has never diminished senior enthusias m. Jay Hoots, always quite the comedian said, "I show spirit by spending every waking moment trying to become 'Super Senior."

No matter how anxious the students were to speed through the school year, they were always ready to prove that they were the most spirited class in school. Jamey Thorndike said, "I show my Senior Spirit by carrying on the Bearcat tradition in attending all sports functions."

The more laid-back seniors — Jason Pyles and Andrew Johnes quipped, "We show our spirit by actually coming to school every day." That comment was truly "subtle spirit."

The senior class always roared the loudest in assemblies, because they had to be the most spirited class in the school. As graduation approached, and seniors took a final look back, their high school years were a treasure, and the future was a brand new challenge. Happy to move on, the senior class had a lot of spirit that was seen in a different way every day.

"Super Senior," Jay Hoots, once again bestows wisdom upon all during the senior skit of the clubs assembly. "Mr. Bearcat," Cathy Ridings is intensely listening to his words of wisdom.

During the senior picnic, soccer players David Eaton and Jermaine Jennings show their true skill on the ping-pong table.

Seniors often find ways to relieve the pressures of school, but Todd Kuhar is taking it a bit too far. Seniorities has definitely set in.

linded by the sun, Danny Matthews is preented from making the perfect pass. Football as a popular game at the senior picnic.

Jason Pyles, Evans O'Brien, and Eric Thomas find time to take a breather after working on their masterpiece, "the Senior Steps."

LEADERSHIP

Being a leader requires confidence, optimism, and responsibility. The Class of '92 had officers who were not only leaders but leaders who cared about the class they represented. Senior class vice-president David Eaton said, "Responsibility is the best characteristic of a leader. A responsible person can be depended on to get the job done." From supporting athletics and showing their Bearcat spirit to being an important part of student council, these officers led the class to an effective and enjoyable year.

"Being a class officer has enabled me to enhance my organizational skills through the planning of many class events. It has been a very enjoyable experience that has brought me closer to our class and to Mr. Goebel, our advisor," remarked Evans O'Brien, senior class treasurer. Tiffany Boyce agreed, "I have been class secretary since my freshman year, and it has really sharpened my leadership skills."

Class president, Cathey Ridings brought up a new point when she said, "Leadership is a quality the senior class has shown this year. The past four years we have become a more unified class, and every senior has become a leader in his/her own way."

IT DOES A BODY GOOD

The nineties brought BIG changes in students' diet and exercise habits. French fries and chips gave way to salads and fruits. Many switched from carbonated soft drinks to fruit juices and water. Students became serious about staying in shape and conscious about their eating habits.

Cholesterol, a word at one time only used as a medical term, became a household concern. The school cafeteria added to its menus to help improve students' diets. School was not the only place students found new and improved selections. Fast food restaurants became aware of the health issue as well. Many of these restaurants began serving such health-conscious items as leaner burgers, fresh salads, and frozen yogurt. As Wimberly Hubert said, "Eating the right combination of foods makes you look and feel healthier, making you feel better about yourself."

The right diet is a good start but it is not complete without the right amount of exercise. Ben Smith brought the combination together by saying, "Eating right means eating enough of the right foods, which leads to exercising and working out Put them together and you have a good diet plus a good exercise program, which burns fat and helps you get that complete healthy body."

Heather Gullyes summed i up by saying, "You are wha you eat, so you'd better exer cise it off."

A fruit juice machine was a new addition to the cafeteria this year. Jamey Thorndike enjoys fruit juice over Coke any day!

Brisk walking has become a daily exercise for many people. Effie Constantinou, Rebecca Sinish, Suzanne Igoe, and Melanie Pittillo get their daily walk around the track during dance class.

A health conscious Ben Nesbitt gulps down a carton of milk. People are now drinking more milk because it helps build strong bones and nealthy skin.

Students found that the cafeteria wasn't the only place they could get healthy food. Jason Pyles, Eric Thomas, and Andrew Johnes illustrate that point while lunching at Subway.

Agilities are always a dreaded activity in advanced P.E. However, Mike Masters and Brian Hawkins are intensely concentrating on the footprints section.

This year's latest fashion is dubiously modeled by yet another freshmen class. Andrea Lance, Sara Butterfield, Trinia Moffitt, and Justin Pride await orders from seniors as to what to do next.

Corinne Gooden does not usually eat this type of meal for lunch, but a few seniors, who have baby food in mind, have taken her by surprise.

Mike Masters is enjoying torturing his freshman, Ashley Fulerton, by having someone give him his fill of strained carrots.

YOU AREN'T FROM AROUND HERE ... ARE YOU?

INITIATION — The ceremony by which one was admitted into a group! What every freshman feared and every senior anticipated! Initiation into the Bearcat family became a day of fun, laughter, and most of all, a great way to meet and learn to like fellow students. From singing on the sundial, to eating baby food, to pushing objects around with the nose, the occasion was enjoyed by all, well, at least by the seniors.

Freshmen also had plenty to say about initiation. Brandon Yelverton said, "I didn't want to do it but it's tradition. Tradition should never be broken at HHS." Other freshmen had different views on initiation. As Robi Eckley said, "I thought it was going to be fun at first. Then they found me!" Freshman Ashley Barber summed it all up, "It's just an embarrassing part of life!"

Some seniors weren't too cruel to their freshmen on senior appreciation day. Peaches Johnson greets her freshman, Andrea Lance, with a warm smile and a friendly hug.

RESRONSIBILITY

"Seniors have responsibility?" asked upperclassman Julie Webb in answer to the question, "What are your senior responsibilities?" It was very easy to focus solely on the glamour of senior life when the seniors left for off-campus lunch, marched into assemblies, departed classes early every day for lunch, and had a day when the poor freshmen slaved for them. However, seniors did have responsibilities - and many of them: scholarship and application deadlines, keeping up grades, setting a good example for the underclassmen, and still finding time to go out on the weekends.

Many of the seniors, when questioned about responsibility, felt that being positive examples for the underclassmen was the most important senior responsibility. Kary Church said, "Senior responsibility is to exhibit maturity and Bearcat spirit." Dennis Braswell agreed in his response, "to be a positive leader to underclassmen.

Other seniors had a much lighter view of the subject. David Wierzbicki declared responsibility as "to hassle the vice-principals.'

In between the hassle and frustrations throughout the school year, seniors somehow managed to get through with a positive attitude. Then, maybe, senior Travis Lindsey summed it up best when he defined senior responsibility as simply "to graduate."

"Senior responsibility is to exhibit maturity and Bearcat Spirit.''

-Kary Church

As their senior year began, many students found themselves studying more and playing less. Seniors had to take on more responsibility for college and scholarship applications, along with homework. Many found that concentration was the key to learning. Emery Boyd demonstrates this point as she closes her eyes to study her Spanish vocabulary.

A Look at Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

Elementary school: That's where thirteen years of hard work, good times, and lasting memories began. For many it started at Bruce Drysdale with the fear of being left without Mommy and Daddy in a strange room full of unfamiliar faces. Thirteen years later, some people faced the future with the same anxiety and fear, while others greeted the future with excitement and anticipation.

Middle Grade was the next level of education. Kimberly Pardue reminisced, "My first day at Middle Grade was scary . . . but, I learned to like it. Middle Grade was a great school, but nothing compares to HHS. No one can imagine the students, teachers, or the spirit until they have been there to experience the tradition." Each grade level brought new challenges and experiences.

With each passing year greater knowledge, responsibilities, and more varied activities were gained. The years spent in elementary school, middle school, and junior high were the initial building blocks for high school. Senior Lydia Kiefer looked back at junior high, "My first day at HJH was a nerveracking one. I remember being shown around and meeting my homeroom teacher. Looking around, there are those familiar faces among the senior class that are still working toward excellence. They were the ones that held HJH together, and now they are keeping the spirit of HHS alive.'

High school brought a wave of advanced classes and higher expectations. As graduation came closer and closer, the senior class welcomed the road ahead of them. They would hold their high school memories close, but they would also look ahead to many years of building memories.

Jason Cram and Cathy de la Cruz take a moment to contemplate the thought of graduation as they try on their long-awaited cap and gown.

Recognize any faces? These second graders from Mrs. Link's class have moved up the ladder to become the reigning class at HHS.

Just look at us now! Many second graders in Mrs. Link's class remained in Hendersonville and made it through the hard work to graduate from HHS.

Seniors at HHS are often seen reminiscing about the past, but David Wierzbicki is looking to the future.

What Do You Think You Will Be Doing 10 Years From Now?

''I'll own baseball card store and live in Alabama.''

Scott Sartiano

"I'll be coaching and married with two kids."

Brian Rowe

"I'll be a single pediatrician in Atlanta, partying as I am now.''

Mary Battista

SCHOWARSHIP

Senior Scholars Search For Funds

Scholarships occupied the minds of approximately sixty-five percent of the graduates. The seniors persistently visited the guidance office, trying to find any new scholarships that could help them finance their way through college.

Scholarships based on need, leadership, community activities, academics, and athletics were available. However, opportunities for every senior to receive a scholarship were somewhat limited.

One of the largest and most pres-

Motley Morehead, which pays full tuition to UNC-Chapel Hill. This award is based on merit and student involvement. The Morehead Scholarship nominees were Heather Bell, Jennifer Lentini, Evans O'Brien, and Julia Perkins. When asked about her nomination, Julia Perkins responded,"It is a great honor, and it means I will get to spend even more time with Mrs. Davis, our guidance counselor."

The Personal Look

The school was known for several different, outstanding things; our excellent athletic program and educational standards were simply obvious ones. However, once you took a closer look and became involved with the students themselves, you found characteristics much more personal than athletics or school work. Individualism was a trait well expressed. Not only did teachers, with classroom techniques or extra-curricular activities. bring out individuality among the student body, but the students also expressed their personal strengths and interests. When questioned on their opinions of individualism, students responded that they felt individuality was very important, "Individualism is being yourself and interacting with other people in your own way," said Don Bodie. Richard Douglas answered, "Individualism is important because it promotes one's ability to function on his own, therefore, preparing each individual for his journey in life." Students took great pride in expressing themselves as individuals and in being recognized as such. When faced with the question: "What makes you different?" Students answered in various ways. Travis Then said, "What makes me different are my boots. my jeep, and my ultra-rightwing opinions." Fred Salatino exclaimed, "I don't look the same, and I place different accents on my syllables."

We all needed to realize the importance of being ourselves and not simply following the crowd. As individuals we make this world a more interesting, less monotonous place. The student body illustrated their individualism in several ways; they proved their ability to stand on their own. That individualism was what gave us the personal look.

NIGHT LIFE

The quest for entertainment in Hendersonville was a long, hard journey. Members of the junior class were a unique group. They knew that next year they would be setting the social standards as they would be the seniors.

The juniors found numerous activities to liven up their free time. Layla Turner preferred being alone. "I enjoy spending an evening in my room, curled up with a good book and doing whatever my little heart desires." Other people preferred going out with friends. Jermaine Waters said, "I hang out with my friends, and we go girl hunting while I'm thinking of Marcie."

Dating has always been a popular entertainment; but Jennifer Ramsey said, "Dating is fun sometimes - if you're with the right person, but I usually find it more fun and relaxing to out with my friends."

Many people found that a form of entertainment was needed afterschool. "I usually watch television after a long day at school just to rest my brain.'

Whether it was going out with friends, dating, or staying home to be alone, juniors used their free time to make life more enjoyable.

Study?

Junior year is often said to be the most important year of high school. Academically, it is supposed to be one of the hardest years. Mentally, it is a draining year. Students have to look to their future to prepare for college and life after high school.

To insure the grade necessary, students prepared themself differently. "Good grades are important to me," J.J. Cramer said, "I try to study two hours a night during the school week." Jessica Burns did it slightly different, "I have to spend an hour on homework each night, and sometimes I spend an extra hour studying." Some people tried to read more to expand their vocabulary. Several people took the PSAT in the hopes that it would give them a head start.

Sophomore Spirit

When a person walks lot of spirit, and we have into a Bearcat pep rally, the pride and spirit of the student body is obvious. It is natural for seniors to be excited and rowdy and for freshmen to scream because everyone else is. It is not always guaranteed, however, the sophomores are going to be enthusiastic sophomores who are not Bearcats, that is. This sophomore class showed awesome spirit. Their voices were heard velling during pep rallies, games, and, sometimes, even in the halls. They showed class spirit throughout their class projects, attendance at sports events, and by getting involved in clubs and organizations.

Not only were sophomores recognized by upperclassmen for their outstanding enthusiasm, but they were also proud of it themselves. Robert Todd said, "I think our class has a certainly gained spirit since our freshman year." Garrett Noegel agreed when he remarked, "We seem to care about our school and take a lot of pride in it." Many of the sophomores felt they had gained in school spirit since their freshman year. Scott Gash said, "I believe spirit has improved 99.9% since we were freshmen." "It's improved a lot," expressed Chris Lance. Kenyatta Byrd said specifically, "It has improved because of our football team." Karen Edgerton exclaimed, "It has improved greatly!'

No matter how much or why their spirit improved, the increased enthusiasm made a big difference in the student body as a whole. The sophomores were a positive influence and a great group of members of our BEARCAT family.

RULES OF THE ROAD

Getting a driver's license was an important part of the sophomore year. Sophomores got their freedom and a license played an important part in that freedom. Robert Todd stressed, "Dating! I can go out without my parents having to drive me." Tommy Tomlo said, "Now I can pick up a girl when I go out on a date."

Driving friends around was an addition to getting a license. "On the first day I got my license, I drove around town and gave everyone a ride in my car," recalled Trey Nicholson. Matt Shipman drove to play basketball on the day he got his license.

Every sophomore really seemed to love having a license, but one person didn't get to use hers very long. Amy Pyles got into an accident only two weeks after she got her car and license. She explained, "I was leaving the Asheville Mall when an old man driving a Plymouth cut through the parking lot and hit the side of my car causing about $2000 worth of damage."

Good Deeds

The sophomore class had time to help a friend and share with a stranger. Molly McKee was in Asheville when "A lady was hit by a car; I stayed with her child until the ambulance came." Nathan Croom remembered, "Once I bought a homeless man food; I felt sorry for him." Good friends were not hard to find in the sophomore class. "A friend of mine was feeling left out so I wrote her a letter and a poem to apologize," said Amy Wilson. Many people did not do great things for a friend; but, instead, they did nice things every day. Jan Anderson answered, "I'm a good listener, and I try to encourage all my friends, especially when they need it." "I support my friends in what they do, and I help them when things are bad," relayed Sarah Kimmey.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Freshman year always seemed to be full of surprises. Most people tried desperately to adjust and fit in. During the process, many students were caught in some awkward situations. Brooke Chapman recalled her most embarrassing moment as the time "I was sitting on the railing talking to some friends, and I fell backwards onto the ground." Cathy Constantinou related, "In a rush for school, already late, my mom wouldn't let me change my clothes after I had spilled Coke all over them, so I went to school Coke-stained."

Athletic bloopers appeared to be the most common. One unknown trainer remembered, "I was most embarrassed when I ran water bottles out to the football team, but I tripped and fell." Everyone hates to goof, but it is even worse in front of a crowd of fans. "During a basketball game against Erwin, I got the ball and ran to the wrong goal," admitted Kelly "Wrong-Way" Tantalo. Jake Wright certainly made an impression on his classmates in gym; While he was talking to some girls, Robi Eckley yanked Jake's shorts to his ankles.

Performing, not only on the court, can be quite stressful. Sara Butterfield reflected on the time, "I almost fell off the stage during Fine Arts Night." Greg Cole remarked, "My most embarrassing moment occurred when I was singing in front of a bunch of kids, and my voice cracked." Most freshmen had fond memories of tripping, such as Corinne Gooden who fell into the gutter while getting out of her car. In front of upperclassmen, Justin Pride made the mistake of "falling flat on my face." Preston Pierce seemed to sum it up best for most freshmen by simply replying "Senior Appreciation Day."

ROLE MODELS

As new additions to the hallowed halls, freshmen looked for people to admire. Many ninth graders idolized their friends, musicians, parents, athletes, and even brothers and sisters. Bobby Brackett described a role model as "a person that everyone, freshman to senior, looks up too. All people need someone to pattern their life after." Kathy Conner said "My role model would be my mother. She works everyday, cooks, cleans the house and still has time for everyone in my family. She is always ready to listen to my problems, and I admire her for that." Melissa Bell admires her sister, Heather, because "she always works hard and is dedicated to all her interests." As future leaders, freshmen needed to be led by people whom they knew and admired.

A Tough Year

The Bearcats were looking to play the role of David in the Bibical story of David and Goliath in their 91-92 campaign. The team was staring down the barrel of what appeared to be a biggerthan-life schedule as the players reported to practice August 1. Three-A powers West Henderson, Brevard, East Henderson, East Rutherford, and Smoky Mountain were on tap for the first part of the year's gridiron action. Trips to neighboring Tennessee and number-one-ranked Murphy were also planned. The Bearcats hoped to end up the year with little more than a weekday practice session as Polk County and Edneyville visited the friendly confines of Dietz Field; and the Cats, of course, traveled to Rosman. Hendersonville looked but did not find the magic as they dropped a thriller to West and an embarrassment to Brevard. The team proved lightning can strike twice as they won their second victory over East in as many years by one point. The Cavaliers of East Rutherford rode up the mountain to find a small -but-big-in-heart Bearcat team. They rode out of town with a narrow six point victory (OT). The Cats did a bit of their own riding as they traveled to the "Rocky Top" and Cocke County, Tennessee. Once again, a 3-A power escaped the grasp with a victory. The team returned home to find a feisty Mustang waiting at the gate. This time, however, the Cats dished out a little bit of what they had been taking and sent the Mustangs back to Sylva. After being hammered for the first six weeks by the "Goliaths," Hendersonville hoped for a little rest as they faced their first 1-A opponent. This one, however, would not be the game as the Bearcats went to number-one-ranked Murphy, minus starting tailback Ben Smith, and came home twenty points behind the state's number-one-ranked team.

Rest was found. however, as the team got a week off and two of what was supposed to be three weeks of vacation in the Appalachian A. Polk County and Rosman found the Bearcats too much as the Bearcats outscored them both 77 to 18. A snowy night greeted Edneyville and Hendersonville on the gridiron, and the Yellow Jackets proved to have the bigger fire and left the Bearcats and Hendersonville stung.

Despite the disappointing ending, the Bearcats captured the conference crown and, with it, so-called home-field advantage through the playoffs. Thus, a Yellow Jacket of a different flavor was forced to travel to Hendersonville. Along with the previous week's snow, Hendersonville's woes disappeared, and a very respectable Haysville team saw Miquel Lammons the center of a party in the end zone where he dropped Haysville's quarterback. Along with the safety came the end of Haysville's season and the beginning of preparations for the invasion of the Maroon Devils. For the previous three years Hendersonville had found that forty-eight minutes with Heath Shuler and Swain was too much to take. This year, however, the Bearcats entertained a Maroon Devil team, minus a star and a historical reminder that the last time Edneyville had beaten Hendersonville, the Bearcats captured the state championship. The Cats entertained the thought throughout the first half as the teams went to the dressing rooms with only seven points between them. An early second-half score and a tough Devil defense broke the backs of the Bearcats, and Swain won the game 35-7.

Most described this season as one of disappointment concerning the record but one full of hope and excitement when looking to the future and the heart of this year's team. Roger Whiteside put it this way, "This season we had our ups and downs, but being young, we got better and will get better as we go."

Miquel Lammons tackles another opponent in the backfield.

A fresh look was found on the hardwood during the "dog days" of August. Two new coaches, many young players, and just enough returning spikers to tell about last year's secondplace finish in Chapel Hill - were all that was seen. It was volleyball season, and this year nothing less than a state crown would be accepted. Thus, under the direction of Kay Youngblood and Baron Jackson, the Lady Cats orchestrated a 14-5 regular season, having a split decision with Mitchell and two losses apiece to 3-A Brevard and 4-A Tuscola.

Included within the fourteen wins were nine involving traditionally powerful conference opponents. A 9-0 record in the conference gave the Ladv Cats the inside track on which to start their journey east and the championship in Greensboro. Murphy. Swain, and Allegheny all gave it their best shots, but the smell of the crown was too much to keep the Bearcats lingering. After polishing off these three, it was time to warm the buses for Greensboro. The Bearcats would in no way be denied their goal as they rolled to a 9-15, 15-10, 15-10, 15-8 victory over Southwest Onslow. The victory over Southwest Onslow meant many things: first, the Lady Bearcats were the state champions; second, the razors could finally be brought out; third, it was time to celebrate. Beth Platz summed up this year this way, "Our experience, fan support, and teamwork proved our ability to go all the way."

The Bearcat soccer team looked to earn respect from their peers as the first few years of soccer at HHS had been underrated. Trips to Carl Sandburg's and many hours of drills proved to aid the Bearcats in their quest for respect. Riding the high of an impressive 12-0 victory over Polk County, the Cats won three straight before a strong Owen team narrowly defeated them. After the defeat, they won the next six of seven games before a Friday-night showdown with East Henderson. This contest brought out one of the biggest ever-recorded crowds at a soccer game in Henderson County. Despite homefield advantage, the Bearcats fell 4-5. Three wins later the Bearcats found themselves in Swannanoa biding for a conference championship against their season rival, Owen. A win would have given the Bearcats home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. This time the Bearcats came up short against the Fighting Warhorses. The second-place finish in the conference sent the Cats to a Veterans Day showdown with number-one-ranked Charlotte Catholic. The trip to Charlotte ended the Bearcats' most-successful-ever season. # Looking for Pace

Women's tennis and men's cross country teams each looked for and found a bit of light which had been absent in recent years. Each, in its own way, won moral victories.

Led by junior sensation Keri Jackson, the lady netters won their first match against 4-A power Asheville High and continued to roll with wins over West Henderson and Erwin. Keeping up the pace with Jackson were-Kate Chandler and Elizabeth Wilson who added doubles victories to the cause. The Bearcats' rebirth was far from over, though, as the Lady Cats put on a nice showing at the regional tournament; and Keri Jackson eventually ended the fall season in a grueling three-set match in the state championships. Along with the end of the season came the expectation that the women's tennis program would continue to improve in years to come as stated by-Dana Stepp, "This year was the best we have had in many years, and I think we will keep improving."

The men's cross country team also found a comfortable pace this year under the leadership of Eric Swindell, Daniel Case, and Joey Bayse. After posting an early-season team victory, the first such victory in five years, the team went on to score many individual victories with Case and Bayse consistently finishing in the upper echelon of the field. # ON THE BOARDS

Once in a long while something out of the ordinary will cause people to look again and at times reminisce about things of old which are similar. A look at the basketball team brought back memories of greatness so rich in our traditions. Great athletes. superior coaches, and a never-dying fire in the eyes of each team member were the characteristics branded upon this '92 team. Thus, the journey toward the championship was begun.

The Bearcats started the year with some minor problems. An extremely tough trip to West Henderson and a gang of Mitchell Mountaineers were on tap for the first two games. The team fell in both these attempts and lost a starter in the process. Senior guard Dennis Braswell left the team and brought the doubters. At this point the Bearcats began a roller-coaster ride which found them beating Brevard, losing to Mt. Heritage, and beating Enka.

A month after the start of the season, the Bearcats were a game under 500. Never fear, the Christmas Tournament was here. The Cats' dominance in this tournament continued against Edneyville and ended against an unbeaten West Henderson team.

After more or less hanging around for the first few games of the year, the Bearcats found the magic. This magic came in the form of two-and-onehalf-hour practices and the stepping up of captain Brian Rowe into the leadership role during Christmas break. From this point the Cats never looked back. Eight straight games the Bearcats rattled off.

Included in the rampage was a twentytwo point thrashing of homestanding Mt. Heritage, number one in 1A-2A at the time. Also, before the shooting was over, number two in the state, Polk County, was destroyed behind the thirty-four points of Jason Thomas. So, with the impressive wins came the hype. The Bearcats, now ranked number two in 1A, were hosting number five in 3A West Henderson. The Falcons brought a perfect record and left just forty-two seconds too late for the Bearcat fans. After leading most of the game, luck jumped on West Henderson's side and granted them a victory. Nonetheless, the game was called the best in the state all year. The Cats beat Brevard by fifty-two and Owen by more than twenty-five to show that they were still the best team around. Just three more regular season games left, and the toughest coming at improving Polk County, the excitement was felt as the Bearcats' post-season journey was beginning just around the corner.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

One senior, five juniors, four sophomores, and a couple of freshmen — not exactly a wealth of experience for Lady Bearcat coach Mike Norman to work with. This scenario was what all looked at when the first part of November rolled around. Sure, the Bearcats "kind of took it" on the chin when senior pack and bigger West Henderson, Mitchell, and Brevard came visiting; but, when the future was looked at closely, the fans saw a great leader in Mary O Goebel, height in Valerie Robinson, Beth Platz, and Dawn Brown, great shooters in Misty Heffner and Nicole Piscitelli. These six, just to name a few, battled hard in every game and never gave up. The team, perhaps, did not sport the best record around, but it did sport something very important a drive to improve the drive which is a basic characteristic of all Bearcats and the ingredient for future vic-

PINNED UNDER

Bearcat fans looked to see two formerly dying sports making a great comeback. Years ago the wrestling program, under the direction of Bruce Snyder and Johnny Haynes, enjoyed tremendous success; but, with their leaving, came the downfall of a great empire. Likewise, the swimming team found itself state runner-ups just two years ago but had not found the combination since.

Coaching compliments of second-year coach Jeff Smith and Chuck Byrd, the wrestling team went from not having a varsity team just one short year ago to having close to a full team which is a tall order for most 1A high schools. Not only did the Bearcats have a team, but they also began to win with very young wrestlers. These stats said a lot for the coaching techniques of Smith and Byrd. Thus, Bearcat athletics had much to look for as wrestling was here to stay.

'Swim to win," the motto of senior Cliff Aaron, transferred to the whole Bearcat team. A ship load of junior and sophomore swimmers had Coach Stover and Bearcat faithful smiling wide. The season opened rather shaky but improved to the point that the team began to get second and third place finishes against bigger competitors, not to mention individual victories. A sound finish in the state competition would be expected.

Tennis Guru, Mastermind, and all-around American guy Richard Brown was at it again! The contemplation which had so enriched his mind returned. "It looks to be an eight iron across the left bunker," were the words of any of a number of Bearcat golfers who found their way across the stage last May. Also, in conjunction with the last day of state competition came the end to the Bobby Wilkin's coaching era. So, what did all this mean? New Coach Jack Murray would avoid the hazards with only a small nucleus of experience: This nucleus came in the form of Trade Elkins and Andrew Johnes. Others, such as Nathan Byrd and Eric Thomas, contributed, but the green jacket would have to be worn another day as this year's team was extremely young.

Andrew Johnes shows extreme concentration as he prepares for his putt.

AROUND THE TRACK

A LOOK at Bearcat spring sports is a look at excellence. Tennis, golf, and baseball traditionally basked in the sweet pre-summer sun and cool breezes of the mountains. Mention Bearcat track, however, and people began to perk up in a hurry. For years, both the men's and women's track programs had sent a variety of variously skilled people to state competitions repeatedly, not to mention to institutions of higher learning via track and field abilities. So this year looked to be a walk down the same road and why not? The men featured Ben Smith, short distances; Brett LaGrange, long distances; and Chris Wright, one of the best at field events. Lady Bearcats featured firstyear coach Pam Bolton and three-time-defending state shot champ Zondra "Peaches" Johnson, enough said! Therefore, many a spring afternoon and evening did find a Bearcat party at the scorers' table.

Coach Mike Norman joined another aspect of Bearcat athletics this year. Already the women's basketball coach. Norman moved from iavvee softball coach to varsity headman. What had been a few years of hard times for lady softballers changed to a spring filled with hard work and a positive attitude. Along with the work came wins, and nothing could have been nicer for a team which had seen many April showers and no May flowers.

AROUND THE BASES

Two outs in the ninth, and things looked bleak, but not for the Bearcats. Gregory Barber, a freshman at the time, was ready to pitch for the final out in the state championship game, and what happened? He struck the batter out, and the Bearcats were 1-A State Baseball Champions.

So, what does all of this have to do with the '92 baseball team? A whole lot is what! Along with Barber were catcher, Roger Whiteside; speedster, Phillip Grose; catcher/baseman, Tommy Bakley; and heat-thrower, Chris Case; who were also freshmen at the time. Add these five (Who are now juniors.) and '90-'91 champ Richard Douglas, and what to look for was some very good baseball.

True, the Bearcats lost some batting punch from the championship campaign, but behind the grade A pitching of '91 nine-game winner Case and reliever Barber, hitting power was sure to follow. Thus, this year's team would capitalize on its speed and defensive plays to develop into one of the state's best once again.

A LITTLE EXTRA

Bearcats looked on as a new facet of athletics developed. This new branch propelled all who participated in Bearcat sports through its six years' existence. The importance of the quick and complete return of the injured, along with the prevention of avoidable injuries, became the cornerstone of the Award-winning Sports Medicine program, led by Dwayne "Doc" Durham. Among the very best in the state. Durham and the seventeen trainers worked in close conjunction with Dr. Ron Moffitt and Dr. Chris Estes to provide prompt care to those in need so the rich Bearcat athletic tradition would be continued for yet another banner year. Minus the efforts of these and others who gave a little extra behind the scenes, the recurring success could not be found.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

To look is one thing, but to find is yet another. Those who participated in Bearcat sports did much looking and even more finding as was apparent by our continued success in athletics. Those who could say that they found possessed great gifts. One group who spent this year finding was our TMH class. Though their finds, as related to athletics, may not have always been a championship as we look upon it, they actually were championships greater than can be perceived by those who reflect. A pick-up basketball game among classmates in the gymnasium or a relay race against friendly competitors in which each and every gave his/her all and was brave in the attempt was what was found. Thus, victory after victory was won, and the feelings of victory were all around.

"ROLLING OUT THE BARRELL"

The LOOK was not long to find a group of Lady Bearcats who really knew what the real meaning of a to be. These ladies, though divided into two groups of ten, provided the knockout punch which had bemany a Bearcat foe. The first group, the fall bunch, aroused Bearcat loyalty not only at traditional theatres of battle, such as the football field, but also at new 'Cat feasting grounds, such as the soccer fields. Round Bearcat is supposed two, also including a few veterans from the first go-around, set up shop on the hardwood. This group aided the basketball come the downfall of teams in their quests for dominance. These Bearcats earned their position as an intricate part of any Bearcat battle plan.

Scholarship, Leadership, Character. Service. These qualities combined to form standards for the acceptance of twenty-nine members into the National Honor Society. The Honor Society volunteered its time by sponsoring can drives, tutoring at the junior high and high school, and working gates for the athletic department. Heather Bell said, "Can drives are a great idea, and they seem to have a lot of support from the school — But, working at them is cold and smelly. By tutoring, I feel as if I've really accomplished something by helping someone else learn." President. Catherine Perry said, "I think the National Honor Society has worked extremely hard this year to continue to strive for excellence."

What would HHS be without the Red and White. the school's newspaper. Editor-in-chief Markita Minors explained, "The Red and White has made a lot of changes this year. We all worked together and changed the paper. The Red and White staff does a great job!" Kama Semmel added, "I believe that the paper and its staff are one of the best. We all come together to create a great publication.'

The Literary Club is available for those students who like to read, write, and help to publish SOCKO, the literary magazine. Thomas Sima said, "The Literary Club is a unique opportunity to hear stories that your friends have written and to share some of your own work.'

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

The band program completed another superior vear. All the facets of the instrumental music department came together for a magnificent display of musicianship. The marching band completed the season with twenty trophies and awards. Drum Major-Christine Owens said, "Since we were such a young band, we had a lot to accomplish. I can't believe how many long, hard hours we gave to our show. All the work paid off, and we had an outstanding season that we can be proud of."

The symphonic band played many concerts, including the traditional exchange with East and Brevard. They then prepared music for the December concert. The winter season was spent preparing for the annual WNC Concert Contest. The band took great care to preserve the reputation and the tradition of excellence. The concert band honored its band seniors in the May concert. Band President Daniel Griffin said, "As a senior, I enjoy concert band the most. The music is challenging, and the people in the band really care about what we are doing.'

The jazz band continued to meet at 7:00 AM. It was often difficult to stay awake at such an early hour. They played for many service functions and participated in the Dogwood Arts Festival. Erin Havard said, "Jazz band has given me the opportunity to be around the people who like to play the music I love."

The band program continued its long standing reputation of dedication and instrumental excellence.

A LOOK AT FINE ARTS

"Being in chorus has taught me not only how to work as an individual, but also how to work with a group as a team," commented Kristen Terebelski. She, along with about fifty other students, make up chorus, which worked very hard as they performed frequently. Their accomplishments were numerous. Aaron Burdett said, "Chorus has given me many opportunities to perform and show people what I can do. It has also given me chances to work with many different people."

"I have always enjoyed drama, and I am very glad that I have received the opportunity to be the president of the Thespians; the people are great; the job is fun; and the experience is wonderful. I intend for this to be something that I will always remember as a fun

THE FOREIGN LOOK

Many students are studying a foreign language. One half of the student body was enrolled in either French, Latin, or Spanish. Heather Bell said, "Right now I am in Spanish III, French I, and Latin I (independent study). I enjoy learning different cultures and languages even though it takes a lot of discipline."

Kutty Clark said, "What I enjoy about my time spent in Spanish is the pronouncing and reading of Spanish words. I think it's a great language."

Learning a language gives opportunities to experience different cultures. Dedicated students spent many hours learning vocabulary and perfecting their accents. Karen Steepy said, "Although Latin took a lot of time, it was fun learning about Roman culture and its contributions to modern society."

AT YOUR SERVICE

"The Interact Club was basically a club established to give students a chance to help their school and their community. We are still in the development stages, and we are just having fun working together and helping out," explained Jessica Burns. The club, formed this year, became another helpful and useful service club. Jessica Rogers remarked, "The Interact Club is a community and international club: we 'interact' with both. One of our biggest projects was to collect Christmas toys for children less fortunate than we."

Another service club that worked throughout the community was Volunteens. These students did many things to help others as they worked for the good of the community. Member Robin Valsecchi commented, "Volunteens allows us to give our spare time to those who need it. It gives us initiative and responsibility, whether we are doing a group project or working individually."

Julie Webb — Are you still on the phone, Julie? Seventeen years have gone by too fast. You have given us a lot of love, joy, and sunshine during this time. Always be the beautiful person you are and you will go far. We are proud of you. We love you, Mom and Dad

Daniel Griffin — Congratulations! Watching you mature into a caring, responsible young man has been a real joy. May God continue to walk with you as you travel the highways of life. We love you! Mom and Dad

Cathey Ridings — Congratulations to our Wittles. You have been a great joy to your entire family and we are very proud of you. You are our blessing and benediction. Love, Mom

Julian Collier — "... A cheerful heart has a continual feast." Remember moderation in all things. Keep your brush wet and your powder dry. Love, M, P, E and J

Todd Kuhar — Congratulations, Todd! The years have passed so quickly and now it is the time to let go of the son we have held onto so tightly. We wish you a future of love, happiness, and success always. We love you, Mom and Dad

Jamey Thorndike — We are proud that you've become such a sensitive and nice young man. Please strive to be all that you want to be and can be in your adult life. We'll miss you and your sweet smile. We love you, Dad, Mom and Suzanne

Jason Pyles — We are proud to see our favorite son became such a fine young man. May your future hold dreams, love, laughter, happiness, and, of course, CARS! All our love, Dad, Mom, Amy, Beth and Molly

Brett LaGrange — Congratulations for growing up to be such a fine young man and son. With all your energy you can accomplish anything you set your mind on. On your journey through life you take our love and wishes for much happiness. All our love, Dad, Mom, Paul and Grandma

Amy Shipman — May your winning smile that brightens each day lead you forward in achieving your goals. Your honest, dependable, friendly, loving attitude will enable you to keep people ahead of possessions and honor above honors, providing a fulfilling future. We love you, Mom, Dad and Jill

Catherine Perry — May your quiet, gentle strength, sense of responsibility, loving concern for others and delightful sense of humor continue to increase with the years. We're proud and love you very much, Mom, Dad, Jim, Bryce and Lew

Kimberly Pardue — Dearest K.P., What a great joy you have been to us! We are so proud of your many experiences and achievements. You have passed all hurdles along the way and mastered them. Always remember, "The secret of happy living is not to do what you like but to like what you do." You have done this, and will always be our special "angel of mercy." With God, nothing shall be impossible. Mom and Father

David Eaton — "iFelicidades!" You have grown not only in size but as a person. You have always been loved and as you move into adulthood that love will continue. You are a gift to us. Care for yourself and others, follow your dreams and God bless you always. Much love, Mom, Patrick and Michael

David Butz — Congratulations! You have been a joy to us and we are very proud of you. We know you are going to continue to do well — your future has only just begun! Love, Mom and Dad

Cliff Aaron — This is the moment you've waited for all these years! It is the beginning of a new and exciting journey. Take with you all your hopes and dreams, the tools you've learned for achievement, our love and support, and go after your dreams! We have faith in you! All our love, Mom, Dad and Bryan

Eric Thomas — God blessed us with a special son who has filled our home with love and joy. What a short time ago The Pumpkin Shell seems. May He always keep you close as you travel life's road. Love Mom, Dad, Ashleigh and Nanney

Jeanni Bass — Congratulations! A precious baby, a trying teen, a beautiful young lady. What a special gift you are to our family! Love, Mom and Dad

Joy Leider — Sometimes parenting isn't always easy and it took a time or two until you caught on. But you have always been a "joy" to us. May the Lord cause his face to shine upon you and may your life be blessed as you have blessed us. We love you very much, Mom and Dad

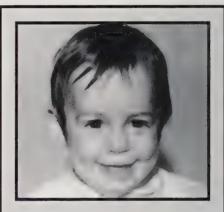

Lydia Kiefer — For 18 years we have nurtured and watched over you as you grew into a beautiful, talented and thoughtful young lady. It is now time for you to stretch your wings and learn to fly on your own. Always remember we will be right here waiting for you. We love you Tudi! Mom, Dad and Matt

Julia Perkins — To our Julia "with a ya" — continue to climb mountains, follow rainbows, pursue dreams and remember we'll always love you. Mom, Dad and Glenn April Caraker — Congratulations! I'm so proud of you. Your hard work and determination will be an asset to you, but relax, have fun, and enjoy life too! I'll really miss you. I love you, Mom P.S. Write to me from Mars.

Wimberly Hubert — God blessed us when he gave us you! You are a beautiful and responsible person. You are a precious daughter and sister. The "glue" will hold as you follow your dreams. Congratulations! We love you, Mom, Dad and Lauren

Mary Battista — Yesterday, today and forever — Thank you for blessing our lives. We wish you continued health and happiness. May all your dreams come true. God be with you. Mom, Dad, Peter, Chris, Laurie, Clint and Mary Allison

Simon Lashford — Since God gave you to us, you have given us so much joy and happiness. We are so proud of what you have done, not only for yourself but for others. Go out into the world with our love and make a difference. Mom, Dad, Stuart, Allison, David and Thomas

Leigh Hollis — Congratulations to a wonderful daughter, sister and friend. We hope you find much happiness in life as you have always given us great joy! Love, Mom, Dad, Greg and Jeremy

The best place in town to find the best place in town.

Whether you're moving in from across the country or just across town, it's the first place you'll want to go.

The office of your local, independent ERA® Real Estate broker. Our Sales Associates know the area as well as anyone — the schools, the parks, the neighborhoods, and of course, the homes.

We also have the services to make your move as smooth as possible. Our nationwide referral network showcases your home to prospective buyers across the U.S. — a vital point when you consider that 40% of all home buyers come from out of town. The exclusive ERA Sellers Security® Plan assures that "If we don't sell your house, we'll buy it." *SM And our Home Protection Plans protect you against costly repairs on a home's major systems and built-in appliances.**

Most importantly, we understand exactly what you're going through in moving to a new home.

Because you're not looking for just any place.

You're looking for the best place for you.

It's a place called home.
